

HOBOT PRINTER APPRECIATED THE JOKE ON HIMSELF

HE DISCOVERED HIS MISTAKE IN BECOMING INSULTED AT WRONG TIME

It is generally conceded by the printers of the present day that the art of "panhandling" went out of existence when the old hobo printer ceased to exist. Not that the hobo printer has entirely ceased to be, but his race is nearly run. Ten years ago they were quite numerous and one would frequently "blow in" to a print shop and shake down the printer for the price of a bed and a meal, and if business was good he would remain in town for a week or so until his capital represented a sum sufficient to acquire a glorious "souse." Today the old timer is a rarity and during the entire season but one, or maybe two, will drop in for a visit.

Tonopah was blessed about a week ago with a visit from one of the old type. Immediately upon his arrival he made the round of the shops, collecting a neat sum. He had hiked it from Arizona, working a day or so where he could get on, and if there was no employment or panhandling was of no avail, he kept on the hike. He worked a couple of days here and when paid off couldn't stand the prosperity and started to celebrate. When his capital had disappeared he started to panhandle again and this work he proved an adept. Another chance for work presented itself and he was on the job, a little shaky to be true, but able to do at the expense of his employer what was required of him. This job lasted several days and when paid off he declared his intention of hitting the trail for Reno. Of course he had to celebrate his leaving the city and toward midnight he wandered into the Nevada Club. He had made the rounds and was just commencing to feel dignified.

"Hello, partner," said Grant Crumley, who had just invited the bunch to step up and watch Jack Hanna work, "come up and have a drink." "Sir," said the printer, "were you ever introduced to me?"

And with that he ambled out into the midnight air. He had been insulted and he wanted to be alone so he could think over the situation. He was back in about three hours. The half souse had grown in the meantime, while his pocketbook had decreased. His last half had gone by the boards and he was commencing to yearn for a drink. "What's the chance for a drink?" he asked Grant, who was standing by the bar.

"I beg your pardon, but were you ever introduced?"

Not a word did the typo say and as he wandered out he laughed to himself. The joke was on him and he appreciated it. That morning he hit a freight for Reno. He was broke but that made no difference. Panhandling was good in Reno and besides it was on the main line railroad, and besides Reno has the largest printing plant in the west and where all hobo printers must be given a chance to get in a couple of shifts' work.

BUILDING A RAILROAD TO THE TONOPAH MINES

The building of the spur from the Tonopah and Tidewater railway from Tonopah to the Gunsite and Noonday mines of the Tonopah Consolidated is now in full swing.

Under the supervision of Mr. Ellis, 80 men are at work and 115 mules are making the dirt fly on the grade.

The Tonopah and Tidewater railway has just about finished the construction of a sidetrack at the junction. The work is being pushed rapidly and it is expected that the first ore train will pull in within three months from the first of October.

The salt works at Saratoga Springs have started work with a force of six men, and a San Francisco expert is examining a large gypsum deposit in that vicinity that may effect a sale of the property in the near future.

The outlook for the Tonopah section in general seems very bright, and as money is getting easier in the east for good mining propositions, there is no doubt that several important transactions will be made this fall.—Rhyolite Herald.

A GOOD RESOLUTION

Sam Davis introduced and, by a good deal of hard work, secured the passage of a resolution by the American mining congress favoring the enactment of a law compelling all mining companies to publish an annual statement in the newspapers of the state in which they are doing business. The resolution is a good one, and should be recognized by the next Nevada legislature's enacting a law in consonance therewith. It would do more to discourage wild-catting than any other act that has been or can be passed.—Reno Revere.

MASQUE BALL AT MINERS' HALL THIS EVENING

IT WILL BE A SIGHT TO SEE MARTHA WASHINGTON DANCE WITH THE PORTER

If you happen to catch a glimpse of his Satanic majesty tonight, don't lay it on to that No. 6 you imbibed on your way home. Or if you happen to run across King Henry IV., or George Washington, it will not be necessary to take the pledge. Just drop in behind and follow them to the Miners' Exchange hall, where the annual masquerade ball of the Tonopah Musicians' union will be in progress.

Every conceivable design of costume will be present and several that are inconceivable. It may be possible that some fair masked damsel will nod at you and for the sake of politeness you should nod back, even if you don't recognize her. She may be the cook or your wife and a little precaution should be used.

The prizes that will be awarded have been on exhibition in the window of the Tonopah drug store during the week, and they are worth competing for. The committee having charge of the arrangements promise a royal good time for all who attend. However, they reserve the right to reject all objectionable characters. The music should be of the best for the pick of the Musicians' union will furnish it.

METEOR SAILS OVER THIS CITY LAST NIGHT

JUST BEFORE DISAPPEARING TO THE NORTH THE AEROLITE BURSTS

Shortly after midnight last night, or in fact early this morning, the late home goers of this city had the pleasure of witnessing the flight of a meteorite. The body disappeared in the direction of the Halifax mine, and just before passing out of sight it appeared to burst like a sky rocket and molten bits of the fiery mass were scattered in all directions. For about a second the heavens were aglow with the light and the surrounding hills had the appearance of having been illumined with a high power searchlight.

MIKE WAS THERE WITH THE REPARTEE

Branch H. Smith, prior to his residence in this city, lived in Idaho. There are many Swede miners there and he relates the following story in describing how an Irishman secured work in a mine that was owned by Swedish capitalists, run by a Swedish foreman and worked by Swedish miners:

"One morning the men applied at the workings for employment. The first stepped up to the shift boss and asked if there was a chance.

"What is your name?" was the response.

"Yon Yonson," replied the applicant. He was hired on the spot.

Number two stepped forward and in response to the same inquiry said, "Oren Orenson." He, likewise, was told to report for work.

The third in line was the Irishman. He wanted a job and wanted it bad.

"What is your name?" asked the boss with some disdain.

"Murphy Murphyson," replied Mike. He landed the job.

WILL PROVIDE BISCUITS FOR CANYON MINERS

MANHATTAN PIONEER WILL OPEN RESTAURANT IN GEORGES CANYON

Mrs. A. F. Roosa, one of the pioneers of Manhattan and an owner in the Black Eagle group of claims in that district, passed through Tonopah yesterday on her way home from the east. En route from the east, Mrs. Roosa first learned of the new district known as Georges Canyon, and has decided to go there within the next few days and engage in the restaurant and bakery business. News of Mrs. Roosa's decision will undoubtedly bring joy to the hearts of the miners of the camp, who up to the present time have been obliged to fall back on their own resources so far as bread and other edibles were concerned. Mrs. Roosa, with the exception of George Wingfield, is one of the first to reserve a lot in the new townsite of Marsh, located in Georges canyon, and will make arrangements at once for the erection of a suitable building in which to carry on her business.

STOCK MARKET

Trading was exceptionally light on yesterday's session of the San Francisco stock exchange and very few sales were recorded. The only gain made by a southern Nevada security was by Fraction of Goldfield, which advanced 1 point.

Montana slipped back 3 cogs, and Midway lost the point it gained on Wednesday's session.
